What is UN Board of Auditors (BOA)?
What is the role the Board of Auditors (BOA)?

The United Nations Board of Auditors (Board) was established by the General Assembly of the United Nations in 1946, to provide external audit to the UN and its Funds and Programmes.

Since then, regularly three heads of the Supreme Audit Institutions of the Member States of the UN have been appointed by the General Assembly to conduct independent audits, based exclusively on the audit evidence obtained in accordance with the International Standards.

The Board has an essential duty to contribute to enhance accountability, transparency and governance of the United Nations and its Funds and Programmes.

This mandate is more than ever important, since the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development establishes the Goal 16: “Promote just, peaceful and inclusive societies for sustainable development, provide access to justice for all and build effective, accountable and inclusive institutions at all levels”. One of the targets to achieve is “16.6 Develop effective, accountable and transparent institutions at all levels”.

The aforementioned is also valid for the UN and in this regard the Board plays a fundamental role, as auditing is inherent to strong organizations and essential to strengthen the public's trust in institutions.
What is the role the Board of Auditors (BOA)?

The BOA performs external audits of the accounts of the UN and its funds and programmes. It reports its findings to the General Assembly.

The BOA supports the UN in its development of strategic thinking, improved governance, accountability and transparency, and in the delivery of its services on the ground.

The external auditors are elected on a rotational basis from the Auditors-General of Member States who are also the Heads of their Supreme Audit Institutions.

Currently, they are from Chile, China and Germany.

• Yes, the GA established OIOS as operationally independent under the authority of the Secretary-General in the conduct of its duties and, in accordance with Article 97 of the UN Charter.
What are the functions of OIOS?
What are the functions of OIOS?

OIOS is organized into the following functional units:

- Internal Audit Division: assesses the adequacy and effectiveness of internal controls to improve the Organization’s risk management, control and governance processes. The division focuses on: the integrity of financial and operational information; compliance with regulations, rules, policies and procedures; and safeguarding of assets. It also identifies opportunities for more economical and efficient use of resources.

- Inspection and Evaluation Division: assesses the relevance, efficiency, and effectiveness (including impact) of the Organization’s programmes in relation to their objectives and mandates. Inspections review an organizational unit, issue or practice perceived to be of potential risk.

- Investigations Division: establishes facts related to reports of possible misconduct to guide the Secretary-General on jurisdictional or disciplinary action to be taken. OIOS can investigate reports of possible misconduct that come from programme managers, staff members or persons outside of the Organization. OIOS is also mandated to initiate proactive investigations to assess the risk to the Organization of potential fraud and other contraventions through analysis of systems control in high-risk areas. As such, it is mandated to have direct access to records, data, sites and staff without any hindrance or need for prior clearance. It can also initiate its own proactive investigation to assess the potential for fraud and other violations.

What is the Joint Inspection Unit (JIU) of the United Nations System?
What is the Joint Inspection Unit (JIU) of the United Nations Systems?

The Joint Inspection Unit (JIU) is an independent, expert body of the United Nations System. It was created by the United Nations General Assembly in 1991 to conduct impartial, objective and professional evaluations of the United Nations System’s operations and management. The JIU’s main objectives are to promote good practices, improve efficiency, and enhance accountability and transparency in the United Nations System.

The JIU consists of five Independent Experts (three from member states and two from non-governmental organizations). These experts are appointed by the General Assembly for a three-year period. The JIU reports directly to the General Assembly and is not part of any United Nations organ.

The JIU’s work covers a wide range of issues, including administrative and financial management, human rights, peace and security, international justice, and regional and thematic issues.

The JIU’s findings and recommendations are intended to assist the United Nations in improving its operations and management, and to enhance its ability to fulfill its mandate.

The JIU’s work is guided by a set of principles, which include impartiality, objectivity, professional ethics, and confidentiality.

The JIU’s reports are available on its website, and are also published in the United Nations official journals.
