What do you know about Katowice?

Katowice is a city in Upper Silesia in southern Poland, on the Kłodnica and Rawa rivers. In recent years Katowice has undergone a huge transformation. Until recently, the city was often seen as representative of Silesia: the place of heavy industry, coal and steel. The road that Katowice has travelled, becoming the modern capital of a metropolitan area with 2 million inhabitants, is an example of the transformation that has taken place throughout Poland. Katowice hosted the UN Climate Change Conference (COP24) in 2018 and will host the Internet Governance Forum (IGF) in December 2021.

The city boasts a state-of-the-art congress centre, well-developed hotel facilities and transport network. Katowice is seen as a leading example of urban regeneration.

"Katowice is looking forward to hosting the international community. We have had many global gatherings. Hosting WUF11 underlines the importance of Katowice as the site of visible and significant socio-economic transformation and as a welcoming host of all events. We are looking forward to welcoming you all to Katowice at WUF11."

Marcin Krupa, the Mayor of Katowice.
